

Dear friends. This is me sharing some MAGIC WORDS to help you know EXACTLY WHAT TO SAY in these uncertain times... I am not sure if it's for you, but would you mind staying in your house so we can stop spreading this thing? How open minded would you be to supporting your local businesses through this time? What do you know about the true risk you are creating for others by not taking necessary precautions? How would you feel if it was your loved ones alone in hospital? Just imagine how good it would be if we could be back enjoying the world by the summertime. When would be a good time for you to reach out to that special someone and tell them how you really feel? I am guessing you haven't got around to finishing all those jobs around the house yet? What simple swaps have you made in your daily routine? The way I see it, you have 3 options... Stay home. Stay home. Or stay home. Because there are two types of people in this world, those who take this seriously, and idiots! I bet you're a bit like me: nervous, uncertain and anxious for our future... Don't worry, there is plenty of good that can come from this... Most people are finding more time to connect with themselves and their loved ones. The good news is, those relationships will almost certainly outlast this pandemic. What happens next is still unknown. And if you think you know, with good reason, I ask "what makes you say that?" Before you make your mind up on this, study the facts and please put people before profits. If I can reinvent through this period, will you consider what your reinvention could be? Because many of us have more than enough and can focus our efforts on others. Oh, and just one more thing – please keep washing your hands! Please can you do me a small favor, think of the others that need your help and do something to help them? So just out of curiosity, would you consider sharing this?

Thanks a million, Phil
